

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A gas turbine engine exhaust nozzle includes a nacelle having an inlet and main outlet at opposite ends, and a main duct extending therebetween. A secondary bypass duct extends radially through the nacelle upstream of the main outlet and includes an unobstructed secondary inlet joined to the main duct, and a secondary outlet surrounding the main outlet for collectively discharging exhaust flow in confluent streams.